Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

Montreal, July 26.—An evening paper, having been repeatedly requested to obtain and publish the names of the Mayor's special constables on the 12th, sent a reporter to Mayor Beaudry for an order to obtain from the Chief of Police the desired names. The following interview ensued:

"Well, your Honor, the public demand that these names be given up."

"Well, they can't have them; I don't see why the newspapers can't drop that story. I am doing my duty in this case, instead of letting the master drop what we have peace."

My object on the 12th was to keep the peace, and to do my duty in this case, instead of assisting the master, keeping up the strife and feeling in the community, and causing trouble for the city."

"I assure you, Honor, that the public, or taxpayers, consider they have a right to know the names of these men who are sent to prevent the peace, and demand that these names be published."

"His Worship, sharply: "They can go to hell!"

"If you do not give them up, other means will probably be taken to compel that they be given."

"They have no right whatever to make such a demand. What is the use of giving the name now?"

"Well, your Honor, there are several reasons why they should be made public. First, the newspaper men have been made to believe that the police have been made to the effect that the character of a large number of the special constables is bad, and some among them enjoyed a respectable character, it ought to be known."

"You can't tell them to go to the Devil!"

"We have, however, we have a legal right to demand these names."

"We have applied to the Deputy Chief of Police for them, and he refused to give them up without a struggle."

"Testing? You can't have them,—there! If the Chief of Police wouldn't give them to you, I won't do so either."

"Then that is your answer?

If you do not give up the names, legal steps will doubtless be taken to compel them."

"Legal humpus! You ruin my patience greatly. Tell me you papers are going too far in this thing."

His Worship finally declared, when again asked to give an order for the names: "I will not give it."

SELLING GOODS.

A commercial traveler, who represents a Roman Catholic house in this city, writes a letter to an evening paper, contradicting the statement made by another traveler, that Ontario merchants refused to buy goods from Roman-Catholic houses in this city. He says:

"I have been continually advised in every previous session; and I am prepared to prove that I have sold more goods to Protestants in Western Ontario than to all others. This is true in the same period of time for the past three years."

SHOTS FIRED.

The Tribune, in an article on the suppression of the Jesuits, says:

"So far as we know, both Catholic and Protestant, save from time to time, it is necessary to suppose this chimerical Order, that it would not be surprising if Canada should one day be called upon to deal with them. Just now, when so much is said about the suppression of Orangemen on the one hand, it is quite natural that men should turn their attention to the Order of the Jesuits on the other hand."

WATER LANDS.

A scheme has been organized here to assist unemployed persons to get possession of waste land in the Ottawa Valley; and a Committee, composed of permanent Canadian gentlemen representing both political parties, will approach the Government, on behalf of the unemployed, to obtain a grant of 100 acres of land, the latter, under their needy condition, and praying that the Government is entitled, under an act passed by the Legislature in 1875, to grant them possession, for the purposes of colonization, of 100 acres of land each, and lands acquired for being granted to the Government, in the Ottawa Valley.

The scheme is contemplated as in every previous session; and I am prepared to prove that I have sold more goods to Protestants in Western Ontario than to all others. This is true in the same period of time for the past three years."

SHOTS FIRED.

Two attempts have been made since the 12th to burn the premises occupied by the Rev. Mr. Doudiet, who preaches to the Orangemen.

INVITATION.

An invitation has been extended to Carmen Hernandez, of the National Association of Amateurs Oarsmen, at Passaic River, New Jersey.

SALMON.

The following account is given of fishing in the Moisie River this season: Mr. Haver, master of New York, in thirteen days, bagged seven salmon, weighing 150 pounds; Mr. Wright, of St. Joseph Turner, of Milwaukee, in fourteen days, caught sixty-six, weighing 1,565 pounds; and Mr. Hartwell, of Williamson, of Boston, in six days scored twelve, weighing 233 pounds. Mr. Turner had the honor of killing the largest fish, which weighed thirty-four pounds, but Mr. Hartwell had the largest, which weighed twenty-one, his aggregate being fourteen fish, averaging over twenty-two pounds each. The lowest average of the fish taken was sixteen pounds per acre.

SUIT TO BROOKER.

La Banque du Peuple is suing the city to recover damages for interest from 1868, for assessments which the Privy Council has decided were illegally collected.

DEATH.

E. F. Freer, former Postmaster of Montreal, died suddenly at 12 o'clock. Mr. Freer was for thirty years employed in the Post-Office of this city, and retired from business life about three years ago. He was a gentleman of large ability and high intellectual attainments.

VACCINATION.

Three-fourths of the deaths from small-pox last year in this city occurred in St. Mary's and St. James' Wards, where vaccination had been most opposed.

AFTER A MURDER.

Detective H. C. Maribel, who was in search of a man named Maribel, who had been waylaying his companion, one Matthewson, near Lt. Cole, and robbing him of $300 and a gold watch. The body of Maribel was found near Lt. Cole, on July 26, and stated to his friends that Maribel soon had gone to the United States. He has not yet been arrested.

Heads of the police have succeeded in getting the names of the men who were secured to Odessa, near Kitchener. A large quantity of counterfeit coin in 50 and 25 cent pieces were secured. The high bid to the bids. The police followed, and were paid up. No streets were made.

LORD DUFFIELD.

On July 26, it was proposed that a joint address from all the municipalities in Ontario shall be presented to Lord Duffield in his office.

LIMBER.

For the six months ending June 30, 55,715,000 feet of lumber, and 65,374 cubic feet of timber, were received in Toronto, all by rail. The lumber was mostly shipped to the U.S. and Canada.

It is said there is great probability of the Halton-Courtenay race being rowed on Owen Sound after all the courses in the province.

The better course cannot be had, and the terms offered on behalf of the Union-Springs champion as most favorable.

PARTIES.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

Ottawa, July 26.—A party of French people went out picnicking, and separated themselves, one a brother, and the other a sister. The brother, a farmer to kill potato-beetles, stood near by, and the wind blew a quantity of the green beetles into his eyes. After inquiry, the whole party were unable to find him, and he could not recover. They are however, improving, though some of them are still very ill.

PERSONS.

Intelligence has been received here that the Judges of pens at the Paris Exposition have awarded the gold medal for pencils, against all competitors to the Dominion of Canada Pencil Company.

TOO HOT FOR THE FINE.

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

Quebec, July 26.—A通信 from Pointe des Monts under date of the 15th says:

"Only a few days ago I announced the death of two men, and now I am sorry to add that there are three others—father and two sons—have died from the same cause at St. John River. Several others have also died from the same cause, and the number of salt-water trout and eels have been found dead on the shores, and the people of Trinity River are very anxious about the cause of the disease, as it seems with poisons. We can see them a few yards from the shore, and can distinguish that they are very thin. The heat in this usually cold climate is blamed."

THE METROPOLITAN.

The Metropolitan railroad in the city of Quebec, which is the property of the Canadian Pacific, has come to a standstill.

Mr. G. L. McLean, president of the Canadian Pacific, has come to Quebec to inspect the damage, and to see what can be done to put the line in working order again.

"I assure you, Honor, that the public demand that these names be given up,"

"Legal humpus! You ruin my patience greatly. Tell me you papers are going too far in this thing."

His Worship finally declared, when again asked to give an order for the names: "I will not give it."

"We have, however, we have a legal right to demand these names."

"We have applied to the Deputy Chief of Police for them, and he refused to give them up without a struggle."

"Testing? You can't have them,—there! If the Chief of Police wouldn't give them to you, I won't do so either."

Heaviest Rainfall Known in This City for Years.

This city was visited Thursday night and Friday morning by the severest rain-storm—the greatest quantity of water falling in the shortest space of time—that it has known for years, since the Signal Service Bureau has been in operation. The deluge commenced with a light rain at five minutes of 7 Thursday evening. It fell for some time gently and without a breath of wind, but towards midnight it began descending in torrents, with sharp bursts from the east and north, which were still falling at six o'clock this morning. The most of this heavy fall came down between 11:30 and 2:30. The total amount of rainfall was 1.14 inches—the largest which has been measured here at one time since the Signal Service Station was established, and more by one inch than the monthly average for this locality. The rain area of yesterday was an extensive one, but the area of the heavy fall was apparently confined to the vicinity of the Milwaukee river, where it reached its height, and about two inches below the through the right lung, and through the heart, when he entered the room. The doctor said he could not survive, and though his son afterwards brought him some medicine, he expired at 10:30 p.m.

He was shot through the right hand, only supposed that he received the bullet, but after, when the latter was extracted, it was found to have passed through his body, and made him lame. He little colored girl, received a fatal shot in the right arm. She is not yet recovered.

SATURDAY, JULY 27, 1878.

Greenbacks at the New York Stock Exchange yesterday closed at 99.

The fears entertained for the safety of the steamship City of Tokio, which was nine days overdue, were removed by the safe arrival of the vessel at San Francisco yesterday. The passenger list includes HAN PIN, the Chinese Ambassador to the United States, and suite, and GEORGE F. SWARD, American Minister to China. The latter has "business with the Government," serious charges having been preferred against him, administration of the affairs of the embassy at Tokio.

Some additional information of interest regarding the intimate relations existing between the Mormon priesthood and the hostile Indians, whereby the latter are enabled to procure arms and ammunition to use against settlers and soldiers, is given in an "open letter" to Secretary SCHWEITZER, which we print this morning, written by Mr. JOHN TOWN, of Springfield, Ill., formerly connected with the household of BRIGHAM YOUNG in the capacity of Secretary and Instructor-General of Militia.

In the English House of Lords yesterday Lord SALISBURY took occasion to defend the Anglo-Russian agreement against the attacks of the Liberals. His Lordship in general terms declared that the Government had entered into no engagements for the future which were not already known to the country, and that the agreement formulated between the Cabinets of London and St. Petersburg was of the most important nature, and intended to prevent a war in the event of the Berlin Congress proving a failure.

The railroad track was laid through the streets of East St. Louis yesterday, the Railroad Company having filed a bond which is supposed to "protect" the people; but, being down, the track will probably never be gotten up. The Mayor, who opposed the railroad so strenuously the other day, when the law was on his side, yesterday issued a proclamation advising his adherents of the impossibility of further resistance, and the angry populace watched the work without molesting the workmen. The cumbersome procedure of our great courts still leaves the town in the hands of two murderous factions, both under the temporary surveillance of a company of troops. The disastrous influence of anarchy on the minds of the citizens has hardened them to scenes of horror and bloodshed, and it is considered certain that they will fall to slaughtering one another with renewed fury upon the withdrawal of the militia.

Upon counting the cost of the great rain-storm of Thursday night and Friday morning it is found that the earlier reports of damage by the flooding of basements were considerably overestimated, although the loss throughout the entire city will probably exceed $50,000. No such amount of rainfall within the same period of time has been known in Chicago since the establishment of the Signal Service station here, and it is doubtful whether the like ever occurred before. That the sewers were unequal to the unparalleled demands upon their carrying capacity is not to be wondered at, as such a condition of things, being practically unknown in this vicinity, had not been provided against. The mischief, however, has been of only a few hours' duration, and some compensation will be found in the thorough cleaning-up which the big storm gave to the sewers and gutters, the streets and alleys of the city.

It is probable that an opportunity will soon be presented to the belligerent State's-Rights Democrats of South Carolina to make good their threats of resisting by force any attempt by the Federal Government to secure the transfer to the jurisdiction of the United States Circuit Court of the cases of the internal revenue officers under indictment and in jail for the killing of a desperado murderer. A writ of habeas corpus issuing from the United States Circuit Court has been disregarded by the Sheriff having the custody of the prisoners, and the issue of authority and supremacy has been raised. The subject was considered at a Cabinet meeting yesterday, and it is understood that vigorous measures will at once be instituted to compel obedience to the mandate of the Court. If necessary a posse will be brought into requisition, and means found to convince the Calhounites that the United States Government is a power which a South Carolina Sheriff will have difficulty in successfully defying for any length of time.

BUTLES employed ex-Congressman SYRNE, yesterday to aid him in recovering some of the ground lost the day before, when Secretary SHERMAN had the floor and used it with such excellent effect. What BUTLES is after now is the "missing link" in the chain of events which led to the installment of the NICHOLAS Government, and he seems to have depended upon SYRNE for the retelling of a large quantity of speculation, rumor, and hearsay evidence going to show that the Louisiana Commission were instrumental in displacing PACKARD and establishing NICHOLAS. SYRNE is asked whether in his opinion PACKARD could have sustained himself without the assistance of the Federal troops, and of course SYRNE responds in the affirmative; he is positive that the Government has done, "The Budget is not of itself a good thing to do; but there is nothing else to be done, and not to do it would simply be to give up the struggle for empire, and even for existence." Such is the light in which the Budget looks to the treasury, and looking at it in all its bearings, it thoughtfully and even anxiously says:

Maj. BURKE's testimony in New Orleans likewise fails to supply the "missing link" which BUTLES is looking for in order to connect President HAYES with a corrupt bargain in his own behalf. The details of Maj. BURKE's story do not differ in any essentials from the general understanding of the affair as gathered from previous statements. There was no formal compact of any kind, and Mr. HAYES was not even represented in the conference which took place. Maj. BURKE had gone to Washington to represent the interests of the NICHOLAS Government. His main purpose was to secure the withdrawal of the United States troops, and the significant part of his present statement is that Gen. GRANT, while still President, had declared it as his opinion that the NICHOLAS Government was the Government that should stand in Louisiana, that NICHOLAS should not be interfered with by United States troops while he was President, and that he (GRANT) would withdraw the troops except that he did not desire in any way to embarrass his successor by pre-determining the case. Here, then, we have direct testimony that the policy for which President HAYES has been so relentlessly abused by the Impeachables is the very policy which Gen. GRANT would have had him to continue to be President. It seems that a sufficient number of Southern Democratic members had already received such instructions from their constituents as to defeat the effort at impeaching the count, and the Democratic cause has resolved that the count should proceed without dilatory objections, before there had been any conference satisfactory to Mr. BURKE; so that this determination of the part of the Democrats was not the result of any assurances from Mr. HAYES. At the so-called conference, indeed, Messrs. GARFIELD, FORSTER, SHERMAN, MATTHEWS, and other Republicans present, distinctly stated that they did not represent Mr. HAYES, and there were only general assurances of a conciliatory policy on both sides. Subsequently Mr. HAYES told MATTHEWS that it was his intention, as soon as inaugurated, to order Gen. AVOUR to use the troops only when necessary for the preservation of the public peace, and this was communicated to Maj. BURKE. This had been GRANT's intention. It was the policy which HAYES intended to pursue, and the whole market not being sufficient to give employment to half the labor offering to work, there is only half the labor employed that might be at work in manufacturing and mining. The United States have or can get all the raw material that is needed for manufactures; there is an abundance of cheap food and fuel, and of labor. The markets of the world are open for the sale of American goods, and have $500,000,000 a year surplus products to sell to other countries, while that of the agricultural laborers is open to the active competition of the whole world. The one class feeds the whole people of the United States, and has $500,000,000 a year surplus products to sell to other countries, while the other is perishing for the want of food in a land of plenty.

Capt. EADS seems to have got into serious trouble with some of his associates in the "Eads" scheme. Some capitalists put about $470,000 into his hands to enable him to go on with the work, as the Government was only to pay him in installments of $500,000, according to the depth of his channel. These capitalists, however, were to get double their money and 10 per cent for the use thereof, in case the project was unsuccessful, and Eads was to pay back a certain proportion of every Government installment drawn by him. This he did with the first two installments, but the last $500,000 he drew from the Government was in anticipation of his claim, and allowed him for the purpose of carrying on the work. EADS thinks that the capitalists have no claim upon any part of this last fund, while they think they have. This is a difference of opinion which has caused some hard feelings among the parties interested, though, "to man up a tree," it looks as though the Government will be the only sufferer in case of failure. The Louisville Courier-Journal says it is all right; "there is not the slightest evidence of bad faith in the transaction"; that Capt. EADS is "the soul of honor"; and that "nothing has ever occurred to suggest the contrary." The Cincinnati Commercial, on the other hand, does not entertain a doubt that "the Eads business is a job, and has been from the beginning."

BEN BUTLER'S "MISSING LINK." After ANDERSON had made a miserable fiasco to bring contempt upon the FORSTER investigation, and after public opinion had forced the Democratic majority in Congress to repudiate the real purpose of the fraud-hunt, the Committee was turned over to BEN BUTLER with the privilege of making such use of its existence and powers as might be most embarrassing to the present Administration. Ever since then BUTLER has called and examined all witnesses with a single view to proving that there was a conspiracy between HAYES on the one side and the Southerners on the other, the terms whereof guaranteed the State Government of Louisiana to NICHOLAS on condition that the Southern Democrats in Congress should make no effort to defeat the Electoral count. This is the story first given prominence by little CHANDLER, under the tutelage of CONKLIN, and it has been the one straw which the implacable opponents of the Administration have been clinging to.

On Thursday, both branches of the Popular Committee—one enjoying the cool breezes of Atlantic City, and the other threatened with yellow fever at New Orleans—were engaged in this particular business, BUTLER vowing that he would find the "missing link," while E. A. BURKE was giving a full history of the affair, with telegrams, letters, and documents. The result has been inflicted upon the country to the extent of several columns, and yet Gen. BUTLER seems to be no nearer to his purpose than he was to Richmond at the time Gen. GRANT reported him as "bottled up."

Secretary SHERMAN's appearance before the Committee enabled him to place himself and President HAYES in a strictly honorable position during the session of the Louisiana Returning Board. For himself, Secretary SHERMAN was able explicitly to deny that he had ever had any personal, private communication with the returning board, or any member thereof; that he had ever received the letter from ANDERSON which the latter claims to have written him, or that he had ever written the letter ANDERSON claims to have received from him; and, finally, that he ever had any reason to suspect the credibility of the witnesses and officials who testified to intimidation and violence, and who made out the protests necessary to a revision of the vote. The letters from SHERMAN to HAYES, and from HAYES to SHERMAN in reply, both written during the Louisiana count, reveal the part of both men in minority and honesty. SHERMAN's letter detailed to HAYES the method that had been employed by the Democrats, which he described as "more like a history of Hell than of civilized and Christian communities," and he added: "We are in good hope and spirit, not wishing the return in your favor unless it is clear that it ought to be so, and not wishing to be cheated out of it, or to be 'bulldozed' or intimidated." And Mr. HAYES replied: "There must be nothing 'crooked' on our part; let Mr. TILDEN have the place by violence, intimidation, and fraud, rather than undertake to prevent it by means that will not bear the strictest scrutiny." These were personal and confidential letters passed between the two men as friends in the very heat of the struggle for Louisiana, and they reveal the thoughts and purposes of the writers; and do such expressions warrant a suspicion of any conspiracy?

Gen. GARFIELD was another of the visiting statesmen who went to Louisiana and whom BUTLER sought to bully or betray into some admission that there was something "crooked" in the subsequent recognition of the NICHOLAS Government. Gen. GARFIELD went to Louisiana, like the other gentlemen whom he met there, at the special request of President GRANT. He found on all sides evidence of intimidation and violence which there was no reason to question. Neither he nor any of the Republicans associated with him ever sought or held private interviews with any member of the Returning Board, and he was able to denounce E. L. WENK's recent statements as utterly inconsistent with truth, because he (GARFIELD) had received so much information as to the real condition of things from D. A. WENK, who was afterwards murdered.

In dealing with GARFIELD, BUTLER endeavored to corner the witness with the hackneyed theory that, if the statements were true, then Packard ought to have been Governor. But GARFIELD was able to meet this assumption in the proper manner. He himself believed that Packard had been honestly elected, but he also believed that the Legislature had never declared him elected in such manner and form as to place the office beyond the right of contest. That is precisely the case. According to the powers of the Returning Board, PACKARD was selected; according to the Legislature, as finally organized and recognized, NICHOLAS was declared elected. The whole question is disposed of by the simple fact that the Louisiana Commission were instrumental in displacing Packard and establishing NICHOLAS. SYRNE is asked whether in his opinion Packard could have sustained himself without the assistance of the Federal troops, and of course SYRNE responds in the affirmative; he is positive that the Government has done,

"The Budget is not of itself a good thing to do; but there is nothing else to be done, and not to do it would simply be to give up the struggle for empire, and even for existence."

Such is the light in which the Budget looks to the treasury, and looking at it in all its bearings, it thoughtfully and even anxiously says:

London to be anxious about the prospect. To call the treaty a triumph, or to regard it as a great glory and gain for England, is mere foolishness," it declares. No such engagement can be made without regret, nor can the relative positions of Russia and England in the future be contemplated by any sober man without misgiving. "What the Government has done," says the Budget, "is not of itself a good thing to do; but there is nothing else to be done, and not to do it would simply be to give up the struggle for empire, and even for existence."

Such is the light in which the Budget looks to the treasury, and looking at it in all its bearings, it thoughtfully and even anxiously says:

There are no limits to the responsibility we undertake. Henceforth we are bound to the defense of the Queen; while at the same time there are many risks, and many temptations to intrude under the English flag. And as our responsibilities, rights, and obligations are to the public welfare. We can see no useful end that would be served by repealing the National Banking act, and think it would be a very serious injury to the business community to repeal it. In regard to the other question, whether the Tariff is in favor of the Government alone, we have no doubt that the regular Democratic nomination for Circuit Judges, but was beaten by JAMES C. ALLEN, who ran on the Farmers' ticket. The same Farmer-Granger influence would have been decisive. This is the reason why the Tariff is not of itself a good thing to do; but there is nothing else to be done, and not to do it would simply be to give up the struggle for empire, and even for existence."

EAST ST. LOUIS.

PROTEST OF THE RAILROAD COMPANY.
Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

St. Louis, July 25.—East St. Louis was considerably livelier to-day than it was yesterday. The Deputies and their supporters who were absent yesterday at Belleville busily engaged in maneuvering, charges and counter-charges were to-day at their old haunts. At the Engineers' House nearly all the planks which have been used to approach the past few days have been used. The sound of the hammer reverberates in the ears of the passing pedestrains, and, apparently, when the Metropolitans are through with the barricading and fortifying of their fort, they will be enabled to stand a long siege. Around the Market-House and Mayor's office the Deputies are congregated.

THE BELLEVILLE STAR.

They also gathered around this locality. The steady and heavy downfall of rain last night compelled them to quit their pleasant camp on the ground and seek shelter in the Hotel House, where they bunked for the night. Capt. Schrader said he did not know when they would return to Belleville, but he could see no use in remaining any longer. He did not appear as if the rival factions would remain here for ever, that would not be likely.

Mr. Cullom, his mistress, Mrs. Cullom, and a man on horseback, were to be seen in the street. And a fourth wife of a Mr. Cullom, a Negro, was a visitor to the Hotel House. The two were forwarded to the agent of the Adams Express Co. at Columbus, with instructions to let them know if, by the time he was to leave, he had not found a place to go to. The two wives were to be married in London.

You will there find evidence of Mormonism which is disgraceful to a republican form of government. I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

IT IS REACHED, what then? An ark of its stem to distinguish the surface, but the earth is as it had always been; with the appearance. The Ark may reach the North Pole, may live for some time with a large number of people, but will their discovery benefit any ordinary person, cannot answer. It is a thin, thin line, the scientists—the meteorologists, the astronomers, the naturalists, the geologists, the ethnologists, the thorough explanation of the Ark will be of immense advantage to the human race; and for that reason, we have the Ark.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

FINANCIAL.

At last we have had a ripple in the stagnant pool of financial affairs; but it did not amount to much, and it did not last long. This morning the sellers of New York exchanges were in a position to demand a little more from the buyers. We heard that one bank offered to sell at 25 cents premium per $1,000, but we could not learn what the parcel was taken, but it was probably well. Some sales were made at 50 cents, but the afternoon holders refused to take 50 cents. Several operators have been keeping close watch of shipments, and amounting as they do to five or six thousand bushels per day, besides the live stock and other products, it became certain that New York exchanges were not to be made up at 100 cents per $1,000 premium, and so long as the market was quoted weak, with a downward tendency. To customers, par @1-10.

Discounts are still made freely for large sums of approved bills, and for small and higher sums are still held nominal at 8 and 10 cent. Money very abundant; on call and 6 and 10 cent. is the range. Some of the banks are glad to loan for almost anything they can get. A very low figure is better than nothing. Currency balances with no limit.

The bank clearings were $200,000, an increase of $200,000 over the last two or three days.

GOLD AND SILVER.

Gold bears no circulation at par with currency among the people. We have for several days now the "gold bug" in full force, and it is true—from hand to hand; they come in over the counter of THE TRIBUNE, and appear on deposit tickets almost every day at the banks. Of course no premium is allowed. Standard and trade dollars are also received, for fractional silver coin is not wanted. The world seems that coin and currency are about equal, and "the good time coming" in our circulating medium is about here.

GRANGER STOCKS.

To July 26.—Stocks.

MATTOON, Ill., July 24.—In your financial column, speaking of shares and stocks, the term "Granger stocks" is used. Please explain what these stocks are, and oblige.

SAFES.

Our correspondent doubles remembers the "Granger" movement against the exorbitant freight charges of the railroads a few years since. It was a national and not a local movement. Hence the stocks of the railroads running through those States are called "Granger stocks." The Western trans-lines—Northwestern, St. Paul, Burlington & Quincy, Rock Island, and Illinois Central—entered in the "Granger" list.

Now, the "Granger stocks" are reported as having been wiped out by every day paper. It may be that all the other Western roads are embraced in one general term, "Granger stocks"; and, perhaps, the trunk lines are also included. For instance, the stocks of the railroads running through Iowa, Kansas, and Minnesota. Hence the stocks of the railroads running through those States are called "Granger stocks."

The "Granger" advance in Granger states was the consequence of decidedly more favorable actions in regard to the crop." This would seem to imply that the stocks of all the roads west of Lake Michigan were included in the term "Granger stocks."

Here are the figures for the year ended June 30, 1877. They show what each company is able to receive in the line of security to its policy-holders. Every man who has a policy, or proposes to get one, should carefully examine the table. Some of the companies in the list have a large number of the New York Mutual funds in their lists with over $100,000,000; the Connecticut Mutual follows with $47,000,000; the Mutual Benefit and the New York Life, each, $34,000,000; the Equitable, $33,000,000; and the Prudential, $24,000,000. These figures are enormous. They are the largest and several other companies in the list can furnish perfectly reliable insurance. In fact, the percentage of surplus of some of the companies with the four million dollars is as much strength as the larger companies. Those that are real, if the manager can be kept honest. Condition has shown how insurance managers can steal three or four millions from poor managers, and yet the magnificent soundness, thus far have gone scot-free. The West asks, How long, good people of Connecticut? How long good Lord, how long?

FREE TRADE AND PROTECTION.

The substance of a series of lectures on Free Trade and Protection, delivered in Cambridge University, England, last fall, by Prof. Henry Fawcett, has been reprinted in book-form by Macmillan & Co. In some introductory remarks, the author shows that much has been done to the cause of Free Trade since his original speech was made. He recommends, and, although one can hardly say that the other has made a very favorable impression, it will continue to do so. It is to be hoped that the present publication will be interrogated by success.

THE HOME.

THE WATER.

Silence befits my window.
I see the water so blue,
That flows beyond the meadow,
Like clearly before my view.

The waveling dance and sparkle,
Like a bevy of happy girls,
With the numberless waves comes gaily
And dances among their curls.

And I think how bright and happy
Some lives seem to flow along—
As smooth as the rippling water,
A life-time of pleasure and song.

And I think of the weary ones
That are never free from care,
And the tired hands that ever
Knead the heavy burdens bear.

And I long to fly to the water,
That lies so still and calm—
The clear and peaceful water,
Does it hold no healing balm?

And I long to lay my head
On tender, tremulous breast,
And let the bosom have my burden,
And find eternal rest.

Chicago, July 25, 1878. LAURA UNDERHILL.

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS.

CONTRIBUTORS.—It would be best to let letter writers know his mercenary. He may be so, but you don't think of the conductor and the letter which the mercenary man would write him. If you want to call names, write to the party direct, and don't to the responsibility of the Home.

RACHEL.—The conductor is so much of an admirer of peace that he dare not print your letter, knowing as he does that the inevitable consequence would be a storm of letters for which The Home has no room. There are special journals for that subject.

SUFF.—If you wish your list of exchanges to be inserted, you must write them out on a sheet separate from any other matter and affix either a post-office box or a street and number.

AV.—You are quite at liberty to contribute to The Home, or to have a notice inserted in its exchange column, without any reference to the organization which you represent.

There are some thirty very varieties of cleaners, some differing widely from others. It would be impossible to say of all of them that they are harmless or hurtful.

CHESS.—There do not seem to be any new or useful ideas in your communication.

THE LETTER-BOX.

There are letters in the following month intended for persons living out of the city will be forwarded by mail upon receipt of address. Residents can call or send to Room 35 Tauxe Building, and get their letters:

Mr. M. Thorpe, Paul H. H., (8)
Mrs. Gertrude, Mrs. D. H.,
V., Chorilla (3),
Sorin, Mrs. A.,
Script (2),
Mrs. R. A. P.,
Silvester, "Virginia,"
"Hollie Hawk,"
"Mabel,"
"Blisswell,"
Eva, Calumet.

Contributions pending for favors marked with a star (*) must inclose postage stamp. They are postal cards.

JEALOUSY.

Franz Giese, Cincinnati.—The barbarity of the Inquisition that has been old Rome and her sister cities of the East under a reign of terror for so long a time, won for their diabolical iniquity the just condemnation of the civilized and humane people of the world. The rack, the thumbscrews, the torture-chamber, the tortures that were so hideous in design to kill the victim, the terror on beholding them, were just cause of their entire career.

History records instruments of beautiful design, which were really conceded mercifully. God only would have known the intent of the evil, even as their caressing arms closed tenderly around the stricken victim. History records the impulsion of the Devil to have the entire vault of heaven in this temple of devils, to have the entire peoples as the day, as slaves at the glittering gates of hell, royal brows, have been dragged to the fatal emprise of the engines of torture. Men of stalwart frame, whose brows have been crushed and broken on the rack because they did not bear to tell a lie, or perchance Dantes had given them a bribe, or brighter than those who thirsted for their blood and death, straining victims. History records the impulsion of the Devil to have the entire vault of heaven in this temple of devils, to have the entire peoples as the day, as slaves at the glittering gates of hell, royal brows, have been dragged to the fatal emprise of the engines of torture.

The wreath of a long-suffering nation took root in the bosom of the earth, and the thorns of the Basilica and the Inquisition were ended.

There is no power to avenge us, "Peace! Be still!" that our own Inquisition, with its tortures of the mind as well as the body, may be quenched in the depths of the earth, and the tortures of the flesh, even as their caressing arms closed tenderly around the stricken victim.

The tortures commences, and the tortures increase, and the tortures increase through and through by the concealed weapons.

Yesterday brought me news of a frail, delicate flower, that had been plucked from the garden of beauty and love, but whose whiteness had elevated her above her neighbors. Jealousy had freshened up the old, and the young, and the old, and the many tongues of fire shot out from the breast of the tyrant, though the outer surface is smiling, and the heart is black. The poor gossips, and the tortures increased, and the tortures increased as a wild blast of wind would cut down the flower, and the tortures increased, and will check the fainting breath of it in its prime.

The torturing fraternity would take only the same pains to punish the good acts of persons that they do those they consider bad, it would not seem like a punishment if they could not be made to bear that is a matter of no consideration.
